Basic and Applied Social Psychology

Basic and Applied Social Psychology (BASP) aims to provide a forum for a rich mixture of experiments, non-experimental methods, field studies, and welcomes innovative design and analysis strategies. The journal aims to serve both as a resource for investigators interested in the application of complex human experimentation to various problems of health, environment, and society; and to social psychologists committed to the advancement of theory and the understanding of basic social and social-cognitive processes.

BASP emphasizes the publication of outstanding research articles, but also considers literature reviews, criticism, and methodological or theoretical statements spanning the entire range of social psychological issues. The journal will publish basic work in areas of social psychology that can be applied to societal problems, as well as direct application of social psychology to such problems. The journal provides a venue for a broad range of specialty areas, including research on legal and political issues, environmental influences on behavior, organizations, aging, medical and health-related outcomes, sexuality, education and learning, the effects of mass media, gender issues, and population problems. This research has important implications for basic social processes and often is some of the most exciting work in the field of social psychology.

The journal is aimed at anyone interested in the problems that social psychologists study and investigators interested in the application of complex human experimentation to various problems of health, environment, and society.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Please send your manuscript to the editor:

Robert M. Arkin, Department of Psychology, The Ohio State University, 100a Lazenby Hall, 1885 Neil Avenue Mall, Columbus, OH 43210-1222. E-mail: BASP@OSU.EDU.

Manuscripts of any length will be considered, but reports that do not exceed 5,000 words of text including footnotes, and abstract (but excluding references, tables, and figures) should be identified at the time of submission. These briefer reports will be so identified throughout the review process, as their objectives differ from longer manuscripts; however, these briefer papers will not be identified separately (as articles versus Reports) in the journal Table of Contents. Manuscripts should be highly legible. Occasionally, the editor will request supplementary materials regarding the procedures or the data analyses.

Cognition & Emotion

2007 Impact Factor 1.511 © Thomson Reuters, Journal Citation Reports 2008

Cognition & Emotion is devoted to the study of emotion, especially to those aspects of emotion related to cognitive processes. The journal aims to bring together work on emotion undertaken by researchers in cognitive, social, clinical, and developmental psychology, neuropsychology, and cognitive science. Examples of topics appropriate for the journal include the role of cognitive processes in emotion elicitation, regulation, and expression; the impact of emotion on attention, memory, learning, motivation, judgements, and decisions; the interplay between cognition and emotion in psychopathology, social behaviour, and health-related behaviours; cultural, developmental, psychophysiological, and neuropsychological aspects of the relation between cognition and emotion; and the nature of particular emotions or emotionality in general. Cognition & Emotion publishes theoretical papers, original research reports, and literature reviews. Submissions can be considered for publication as regular articles or brief reports.

SPECIAL ISSUES

Issues devoted to a single topic are regularly published in this journal; these are sent free to subscribers in that year, and are also available to purchase separately as books for non-subscribers. ## CALL FOR SPECIAL ISSUE PROPOSALS

Cognition & Emotion has a strong tradition of publishing exceptional Special Issues, which the current editorial team are keen to continue. Each year at least one special issue will appear. To further ensure the publication of high-quality Special Issues, a more active policy will be followed: Rather than letting the selection and publication depend on individual initiatives, the Editors prefer a broader and open invitation.

This open call is to invite researchers to submit proposals for a Cognition & Emotion Special Issue. With this call we want to invite proposals for Special Issues on topics related to the focus of the journal. In general, a Special Issue should have a well-articulated unifying theme and should reflect the state-of-the-art, currently relevant and leading edge topics in cognition and emotion research. It will typically include a review article of the research in the area of focus. Selection of Special Issues will be made by the Editors-in-Chief, in consultation with the Associate Editors. A decision will be made on February 1st of each year, taking into account the proposals that have been received before December 31st of the preceding year. See website below for further details.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Please email your paper, saved in a standard document format type such as Word or PDF, to Duncan.Nicholas@psypress.co.uk. You may also contact the Editorial Assistant by phone on (0)2070 177730.

Manuscripts that describe only one experiment should typically be submitted as a brief report. The main text of a brief report (including footnotes) should contain no more than 4000 words. Brief reports should include a maximum of two tables or figures and 25 references. All manuscripts should be submitted in American Psychological Association (APA) format following the latest edition of Publication Manual of the APA (currently 5th edition). Before submitting, read the full Instructions for Authors at the website below.

European Journal of Work and Organizational Psychology

The European Journal of Work and Organizational Psychology aims to bring together practitioners and academics from all areas of the discipline, and to stimulate the exchange of ideas, opinions and thoughts between these groups. The journal publishes empirical, theoretical and review articles of high scientific quality that are relevant to the real-world situations faced by professionals. Only submissions of methodological and theoretical rigour will be considered.

The journal fosters European research, but is not exclusively European, having an international authorship, readership and editorial board. Submissions from all around the world are invited.

The journal primarily publishes freely submitted contributions, but will occasionally also publish a themed Special Issue, although all contributions are submitted to rigorous peer review. Papers and themed Special Issues are published on a wide range of topics covered by the umbrella of work, organizational, industrial and occupational psychology. These include organizational change, organizational climate, team work, motivation, innovation, leadership, bullying, stress in the workplace, burnout, job satisfaction, job design, selection and training.

European Review of Social Psychology

The European Review of Social Psychology (ERSP) is an international e-first journal published under the auspices of the European Association of Social Psychology. The ERSP aims to further the international exchange of ideas by providing an outlet for substantial accounts of theoretical and empirical work, whose origins may be, but need not be, European. The emphasis of these contributions is on substantial individual programmes of research and on critical assessment of major areas of research, as well as on topics and initiatives of contemporary interest and originality.

With the help of an international editorial board of established scholars, the editors invite outstanding researchers to contribute to these volumes. All manuscripts are externally reviewed, and publication is subject to a positive outcome of the review process. The European Review (now in its 20th year) is widely accepted as one of the major international series in social psychology. With its e-first publishing model it offers authors an opportunity to participate in a well-respected publication and to disseminate their ideas quickly, while allowing readers the chance to see individual articles as soon as they are completed, without waiting for a whole volume or issue to be prepared.

An e-first journal

Each article is published online shortly after it has been accepted. Subscribers immediately receive an email alerting them to the article's publication, and all users at that institution are able to view and print the article from links in the email. This is an excellent resource for graduate students.

A subscription now entitles all users at that institution to view not only all the articles published in that year's volume, but all articles ever published in the journal, from Volumes 1 to 19! Once all the articles of a given volume have been published online, they are collected and bound into an attractive single-printed volume during the spring of the following year. This volume is sent to all subscribing institutions and EASP members all over the world. The printed volumes are also available for individual purchase to non-subscribers: you can find details of how to purchase a previously-published volume at www.psypress.com/ersp.

*ENTIRE ARCHIVE FREE ONLINE!

A subscription to the European Review now entitles all users at that institution online access to every single article in the journal's entire 19-year archive.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

There are three routes to manuscript submission: Many manuscripts are commissioned by the Editors, who invite contributions based on the author's recent publication of several empirical articles in leading peer-reviewed journals. However, the Editors also very much welcome spontaneous submissions. With spontaneous submissions, authors can either submit the full manuscript or provide a ca. 5-page outline to check beforehand that the manuscript is likely to be suitable for the European Review. This outline should contain a full listing of their own prior primary publications which will form the basis of the proposed submission. Regardless of whether commissioned, spontaneously submitted, or invited based on outline, all manuscripts will be sent out to reviewers and the decision to accept or reject will be based on these reviews and the editors' evaluations.

All submissions and proposals should be made through the editorial office. Please note that submission of papers and the complete editorial process are solely electronic to expedite the peer-review process. Please email your paper, saved in a Word file (to allow direct editing on the manuscript), to

Please read the full Instructions for Authors at the journals website below.

Identity

Identity, sponsored by the Society for Research on Identity Formation, is international and multidisciplinary in scope, providing a forum for those involved in developing relevant theory and conducting empirical research to share ideas and findings. The unifying theme of articles published in Identity is the many ways in which individuals develop a self-definition in terms of those goals, values, and beliefs that provide shape, direction, meaning, and purpose in life. Such self-definitions are formed in a variety of life-domains including vocation, religion, politics, ethnicity, gender-roles, and sexual expression. Among the questions addressed in the journal are the following: (a) the cultural, social, ethnic, familial, personality, biological, and other variables that help to shape ascribed and chosen aspects of identity, (b) the course of identity development across the life-span, (c) the expression of personal identity within a relational context constituted by family, friends, romantic partners, and social institutions, (d) the structure, integration, differentiation, and other cognitive elements pertaining to identity, (e) the role that identity elements play with respect to quality of life (well-being), (f) interventions to promote successful identity formation and (g) cross-national comparisons identifying similarities and differences in identity functioning.

In addition to its focus on theoretical analyses and reports of empirical research findings, Identity welcomes contributions pertaining to identity-related methodologies, program recommendations and evaluations, and policy proposals. Submissions are invited from all disciplines including, but not limited to, Psychology, Sociology, Anthropology, Psychiatry, Education, Political Science, and Philosophy. The journal publishes articles reporting studies employing a wide range of quantitative and qualitative methods. The intention is to provide a nonpartisan forum for identity theorists and researchers to exchange ideas with the goal of promoting a better understanding of the role played by identity in human functioning.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Submit manuscripts to editor-in-chief, Alan Waterman, by email at identity@tcnj.edu. Authors are strongly encouraged to submit manuscript files in MS Word format, as e-mail attachments or by disk. If attachments cannot be downloaded, authors will be asked to send the manuscript file via airmail or courier. If the manuscript is sent on a computer disk, only one hard copy printout that exactly matches the disk must be supplied.

Manuscripts submitted to Identity are reviewed by scholars with special competence in the area represented by the submission. To facilitate proper matching of reviewers, authors should provide six key words. If authors feel that their manuscript needs special attention, they should provide the names and addresses (including email) of potential reviewers who can provide unbiased assessments. Before submitting, read the full Instructions for Authors at the journal's website below.

International Journal of Psychology

The International Journal of Psychology (IJP) is the journal of the International Union of Psychological Science (IUPsyS) and is published under the auspices of the Union. IJP seeks to support the IUPsyS in fostering the development of international psychological science. It aims to strengthen the dialog within psychology around the world and to facilitate communication among different areas of psychology and among psychologists from different cultural backgrounds. IJP is the outlet for empirical basic and applied studies and for reviews that either (a) incorporate perspectives from different areas or domains within psychology or across different disciplines, (b) test the culture-dependent validity of psychological theories, or (c) integrate literature from different regions in the world. IJP does not publish technical articles, validations of questionnaires and tests, or clinical case studies.

Regular issues include two types of articles: empirical articles and review articles. Empirical articles report data from single or multiple studies in one of the major fields of scientific psychology. Review articles provide overviews of the international literature on a particular topic; authors are especially encouraged to include in their review relevant publications from regions of the world not typically cited and/or not published in English. Special topical issues or sections are also published two or three times a year. All articles include a detailed abstract in English, French and Spanish.

THE INTERNATIONAL PLATFORM FOR PSYCHOLOGISTS

Associate Editors: M. Bullock (USA) and P.L.-J. Ritchie (Canada)

Many of IJP's issues include a second section, the International Platform for Psychologists, which provides an opportunity to exchange news and opinions on psychology as an academic and applied profession. This section also contains information about the IUPsyS, about major international meetings, and about the activities of the National Psychological Societies. Finally it offers an opportunity to express opinions and to discuss internationally significant psychological issues. There is also a United Nations section with the International Platform for Psychologists.

The Journal of Positive Psychology

Positive psychology is about scientifically informed perspectives on what makes life worth living. It focuses on aspects of the human condition that lead to happiness, fulfillment, and flourishing. The Journal of Positive Psychology (JOPP) provides an interdisciplinary and international forum for the science and application of positive psychology. JOPP is devoted to basic research and professional application on states of optimal human functioning and fulfillment, and the facilitation and promotion of well-being.

JOPP brings together leading work in positive psychology undertaken by researchers across different subdisciplines within psychology (e.g., social, personality, clinical, developmental, health, organizational), as well as across other social and behavioral disciplines (e.g., sociology, family studies, anthropology, neuroscience, philosophy, economics, medicine, organizational sciences).

Topics appropriate for JOPP include original research on human strengths and virtues, personal and social well-being, as well as applications to psychotherapy and counseling. Articles that evaluate the teaching and coaching of positive psychology are also invited. Special emphasis is placed on new theoretical and methodological approaches that advance both the science and practice of positive psychology. JOPP publishes peer-reviewed original research reports, theoretical and review articles, and book reviews.

Psychological Inquiry

An International Journal for the Advancement of Psychological Theory

Psychological Inquiry is an international forum for the discussion of theory and meta-theory. The journal strives to publish articles that represent broad, provocative, and debatable theoretical ideas primarily in the areas of social psychology and personality.

We discourage submission of purely empirical, applied, or review articles. Each issue typically includes a target article followed by peer commentaries and a response from the target author.

Informaworld™

Go to the Journals pages of informaworld™, where the specialist products and services from Taylor & Francis, Routledge, Psychology Press and Informa Healthcare come together in one dedicated resource.

informaworld™ combines improved accessibility with your own customisable features so that the information you need is readily available when you need it most.

Informaworld.com

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Manuscripts for the target articles can be invited or submitted. Manuscripts for the commentaries are always invited. Authors for the commentaries are chosen by the editors with input from the target authors.

The journal's editors prefer receiving submissions as e-mail attachments. Send these to:

Llmartin@uga.edu or to

Rerber@depaul.edu.

You can also submit 3 hard copies of your manuscript to: Leonard L. Martin, Department of Psychology, University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602-3013; or to Ralph Erber, Department of Psychology, DePaul University, 2219 North Kenmore, Chicago, IL 60614. Target articles should be approximately 50 double-spaced manuscript pages in length, including references. Manuscripts are not returned.

Before submitting, read the full Instructions for Authors at the journal's website below.

The Psychologist-Manager Journal

The Psychologist-Manager Journal (TPMJ) is a scholarly publication for members of the Society of Psychologists in Management (SPIM) and others with similar interests. Conceptualized as a hybrid between a journal and a professional guide to good managerial practice, it is directed at the practicing psychologist-manager. Submissions are invited for the following areas:

- Management Principles: The Theory of Management: Full-length articles (typically 20 double-spaced typed pages, including references) discussing a particular theoretical application. The relevance for the practice of psychology in management should always be clear. Also relevant are book reviews of timely or classical books of interest to the practicing psychologist-manager.
- Live from the Firing Line: The Practice of Management: These brief articles (typically under 15 double-spaced manuscript pages) should be lively, well-written, first-hand experiences illustrating particularly effective management techniques or methods, difficult situations or failures. The experiences should hold general appeal to the readership and should clearly communicate the learning that came from the experience.
- Research Tools for the Psychologist-Manager: Original empirical research relevant to the practicing psychologist-manager. Studies of applications of management to psychology or psychology to management are welcome, provided they have clear and direct implications for the psychologist-manager. These articles are normally 25 pages or less, including all figures and tables.
- Book Reviews and Other Submissions: Innovative contributions of value to psychologist-managers are encouraged.

SOCIETY JOURNAL

This is an official journal of the Society of Psychologists in Management (SPIM), whose mission is to facilitate the growth, development, and interaction of psychologists who work as managers or whose primary focus is the application of psychology to management.

Self and Identity

Work on self and identity has a special place in the study of human nature, as self-concerns are arguably at the center of individuals' striving for well-being and for making sense of one's life. Life goals develop and are influenced by one's view of what one is like, the way one would ideally like to be (or would like to avoid being), as well as one's perceptions of what is feasible. Furthermore, conceptions of self and the world affect how one's progress towards these goals is monitored, evaluated, redirected, re-evaluated, and pursued again. Thus, the "self" as a construct has far-reaching implications for behavior, self-esteem, motivation, experience of emotions and the world more broadly, and hence for interpersonal relationships, society, and culture.

Self and Identity is devoted to the study of these social and psychological processes of the self, including both its agentic aspects, as well as the perceived and construed aspects as reflected in its mental representations. The journal aims to bring together work on self and identity undertaken by researchers across different subdisciplines within psychology (e.g., social, personality, clinical, development, cognitive), as well as across other social and behavioral disciplines (e.g., sociology, family studies, anthropology, neuroscience). Special emphasis is placed on theories and research that are generative in opening new terrain for future investigation. A second continual motivating goal of the journal, will be work that offers integration at the level of basic processes. The journal publishes empirical articles of all lengths, and occasional theoretical pieces.

SPECIAL ISSUES

The following special issue has been published in this journal: a paperback version was sent free to subscribers in 2007, and a hardback version can be purchased separately as a book.

The Implicit Self

Guest editors: Laurie A. Rudman and Steven J. Spencer

Principal questions guiding the special issue include: How does the implicit self regulate emotion and defend against ego-threats? When and how does it adapt to changes in social identity and social comparison? What are the consequences of discrepancies between explicit and implicit self-evaluations? When and how do implicit self-identities develop?

Volume 6, Issues 2-3 (April 2007)

Hardback ISBN 978-1-84169-826-7 £39.95 $70.00

Social Influence

Social Influence provides an integrated focus for research into this important, dynamic, and multi-disciplinary field. Topics covered include: conformity, norms, social influence tactics such as norm of reciprocity, authority, scarcity, interpersonal influence, persuasion, power, advertising, mass media effects, political persuasion, propaganda, comparative influence, compliance, minority influence, influence in groups, cultic influence, social movements, social contagions, rumors, resistance to influence, influence across cultures, and the history of influence research. This journal should be of interest to social psychologists, political psychologists, consumer psychologists, organizational psychologists, sociologists, communication researchers, and anyone interested in any aspect of social influence.

The journal publishes mostly experimental research investigating aspects of social influence, although we will consider correlational studies, surveys, and meta-analyses. Although not a requirement, we strongly encourage authors to use behavioral dependent measures (e.g., petition signing, donations, voting, helping, etc.). The research published should advance theory and/or application. Social Influence desires short, reader-friendly manuscripts (i.e., there is a 5000 word limit and the authors should be aware of the cross-disciplinary nature of the journal and avoid jargon).

You may also contact the Editorial Assistant by phone on (0)2070 177730.

Social Influence will only consider short reports, with a maximum of 5000 words. This word limit excludes the abstract (which should be less than 120 words), the title, table and figure text, and references. Due to the journal's new emphasis on shorter articles, the new team of action editors will aim to have all submitted manuscripts reviewed and returned within three weeks.

EXCERPT FROM KIP WILLIAMS' INITIAL EDITORIAL STATEMENT:

I want to strongly encourage researchers to use actual behaviors as dependent variables, rather than relying solely on paper-and-pencil selfreports, or key-presses on a computer. A recent article by Baumeister, Vohs, and Funder (2007) entitled, "Psychology as the science of selfreports and finger movements: Whatever happened to actual behavior?" in Perspectives on Psychological Science, underscores the importance of examining real behaviors that occur in the real world. When one thinks about classic studies in social influence, what comes to mind is the public judging of line lengths, pressing a shock lever, abusing power in a mock-prison, agreeing to erect a billboard in one's yard, donating time to clean up the local zoo, giving money to a charity. Behaviors are interesting and memorable.

Social Neuroscience

50% More Issues
in 2009

Social Neuroscience features original empirical articles that examine how the brain mediates social cognition, interpersonal exchanges, affective/cognitive group interactions, and related topics that deal with social/personality psychology.

The goal of the journal is to provide a place to publish empirical articles that intend to further our understanding of the role of the central nervous system in the development and maintenance of social behaviors.

Submissions from all branches of neuroscience are encouraged, including (but not limited to) bio/neuropsychology, evolution, psychiatry, neurology, and neuroscience. Further, submissions that have brain-based empirical data in the fields of social and cognitive psychology, including social cognitive neuroscience, philosophy, or other humanities areas are encouraged.

Articles published in Social Neuroscience cover all neuroscience techniques including neuroimaging methods (e.g., fMRI, PET, ERP, TMS), as well as more traditional neuroscience techniques (e.g., animal studies, case studies, psychiatric populations, post-mortem studies, pharmaceutical, agonist /antagonist). Social Neuroscience does not publish articles that report only behavioral data.

The journal focuses on both molar (i.e., regional cortical localization, neural networks) and molecular (i.e., neurotransmitter) research. All social behaviors are covered including all aspects of inter- and intra-personal relationships. Both environmental and genetic influences are presented. Abnormal behaviors and populations are focused on in terms of understanding social/brain relationships. Language, memory, attention and perception are appropriate topics if they relate to specific social behaviors or cognitions. Studies that approach social neuroscience from an environmental or genetic approach are equally appropriate, and related topics that deal with the interface of neuroscientific and social/personality investigations.

Measurement: Interdisciplinary Research and Perspective

EDITORS

Mark Wilson,
University of California, Berkeley, USA
Paul DeBoeck,
K.U. Leuven, Belgium
Pamela Moss, University of Michigan,
USA

Measurement is devoted to the interdisciplinary study of measurement in the human sciences. Each issue of the journal features a focus article, along with commentaries that embody dialogue and debate across multiple perspectives. The journal's overarching theme is to promote the development, critique, and enrichment of the concepts and practices of measurement. Through peer commentary and authors' responses, Measurement provides an opportunity for discussion that is largely unavailable outside the specific authors and reviewers of a particular manuscript.

RECENT ARTICLES

Lead Article: Historical Perspectives on Invariant Measurement, Guttman, Rasch, and Mokken: George Engelhard Jr.

Commentary: Other Historical and Philosophical Perspectives on Invariance in Measurement: William P. Fisher Jr.

Model-Implied Invariance in Psychometrics, Be Skeptical When Theory Suggests Data are not Needed: Roger E. Millsap

A Note on Measurement Scales and Statistical Testing: Rob R. Meijer, Siebie J. Oosterloo

Invariance, Artifact, and the Psychological Setting of Rasch's Model, Comments on Engelhard: Joel Michell

A Commentary on Historical Perspectives on Invariant Measurement, Guttman, Rasch, and Mokken: R.J. De Ayala

Rejoinder: Continuing the Dialogue on Invariant Measurement: George Engelhard Jr.
